HALE BROS. & CO.

THE

Archimedean Lever

—IS—

HALE'S

—GREAT—

☞ SPECIAL SALE

—OF—

NEW YORK AND EASTERN GOODS!

It has raised the people from the very depths of ruinous prices, and placed them far above the reach of the usurer. When there is a wish to accomplish something, it is a common remark to say, "It is only a question of time;" but in some cases it appears that Time itself is annihilated, and its twin-born companion, "Circumstance," relieves old "Time" of its load.

The circumstance of HALE BROS. & CO. opening out an A B C business is predicative of a brighter dawn in DRY GOODS, etc., and the old cloud-capped hills of big prices melt away before the sun-lit sky of a more liberal policy. The almost omnipotent lever of

GREAT SPECIAL SALE

Has lifted from the Shoulders of the People

—THE—

SUPERINCUMBENT WEIGHT OF FANCY PRICES!

And placed within their reach all they need at figures commensurate with their income, and, with Archimedes, we hold that the same principle will lift the world.

"Man's Aspirations Are Boundless."

We hold now five points on the Pacific coast. The fact is, the lever is at work, and at each of our factories there is a true realization that we are doing good.

THE PEOPLE KNOW IT; THE PEOPLE FEEL IT!

—THEIR—

CASH GOES FARTHER

Than it used to do, when in the past they had to pay two dollars for what they now buy for one. The aged fossils, with their credit system, are hiding their heads—their occupation is gone. For themselves and not "for the people" is worn out, and that heroic Mother, who had the self-abnegation to deny herself of a Calico Dress, rather than buy it on credit, has the satisfaction of knowing that she is doing better; that her self-sacrifice has been productive of good, and, with self-reliance, she can boldly enter a store and say, "I don't want it," if the article does not suit her.

—IN CONCLUSION—

WE INVITE EVERYBODY TO PAY A VISIT TO

NORTHERN NEVADA.

HISTORICAL MATTERS—DISCOVERY OF HUMBOLDT RIVER.

A Noted Treaty—Settlement of an Old Controversy—The Pioneers of Nevada.

[Correspondence of the RECORD-UNION.]

QUEEN'S RIVER COUNTY, May 13, 1882.

In a former letter reference was made to certain physical characteristics of northern Nevada, and to the industrial pursuits and resources of this region. Among other matters reference was made to Mary's river. Many will recollect, as children, tracing on the old maps a short, crooked line—a sort of a polywog wiggling in the midst of a peppered vacancy—emblazoned "American Desert," indicating a river commencing nowhere and ending nowhere, surrounded by a country suggesting a sterile idea of Sahara. The desert has mostly disappeared; so has most of

MARY'S RIVER.

The scratched line is still there, and so is the river, but the name of the great German naturalist has superseded that of the squaw who had the honor of first giving it a distinctive designation. I have known men who insisted that the river was called Humboldt, because Humboldt discovered it. Washing off alkali dust in the hot springs near Elko, men have been heard to bless the name of Baron Von Humboldt, and thank their good stars for his keen eyesight for steam clouds. Yet Humboldt never was within a thousand miles of this river. The explorer who did not discover America succeeded in affixing his name to it, like an epitaph on a tombstone; and the man who never saw, and possibly never heard of this river, found a name here. It is rather a sorry reflection, too, as has been suggested, that the only geographical points which have been named after the greatest of the travelers of two continents, are a solitary bay on the coast of California and an insignificant stream in the interior of Nevada.

ITS EARLIEST VISITORS

Are unknown. When it was first seen by white men probably will never be ascertained. The men who first struck out into this untracked region were more accustomed to handling rifles than pens. There were selfish reasons, too, for keeping a close mouth, even had communication been possible. This was debatable ground. Beaver and otter were swimming in the waters, and these men were hunting for furs. Giving away their geographical knowledge would have been giving away their daily hardtack and bacon. The Canadian trappers of the Hudson Bay Fur Company were prohibited from disclosing the secrets of their expeditions. Its rival, the Russian Fur Company, was not more generous. The Astor American Fur Company, and the later St. Louis companies of independent trappers, were equally interested in secretly hunting out their own sections, and silently making them profitable. This river was undoubtedly known to these associated traders, and probably to all of them, long before written history commenced here; but nothing is now known of their explorations, unless such information can be obtained by ransacking the ancient letter-files and official reports stowed away in the dusty chests of the home offices of those companies.

SOME ANTIQUARIAN

May some day round his literary ambition by assorting the old records to be found there, and writing a new history of those comparatively dark ages. We know something of the immense operations of those fur companies at the north and west of this region for a long time anterior to 1825, but nothing definite respecting this particular section before that date. The Russians were in California, as far south as Bodega and San Francisco. They named its majestic peak, Shasta. The French names of all the prominent points in Idaho attest the familiarity of the Canadian employes of the Hudson Bay Company far to the east of old Fort Hall. Undoubtedly they knew the Humboldt as well as the Columbia. If so, they kept their knowledge to themselves, for their own use. Several nations claimed this country until 1819, and it was a long time after that date before the boundary line was surveyed. Each nationality did what was right in his own sight, and caught or bought as many furs as could be had for love or money. It was one of these that furnished the first known title to this river—a little episode of

LOVE IN THE DESERT.

In 1823 Salt Lake was discovered by the employes of the St. Louis Fur Company, and a rude fort erected there. In the summer of 1825 a company of about forty men and Indians, under the command of Captain Jerrediah S. Smith, started from that point westward, to explore a new trail through the unknown desert to California. He had an Indian wife named Mary, who seems to have known something of a portion of the proposed route, by hearsay or otherwise. She with other Indians guided Smith's company to the head-waters of this stream, and Smith, affectionately or gratefully, gave it her name. It continued to be known as such until 1846, when Colonel Fremont came down the same trail, and with questionable fastidiousness exchanged the name of the humble Indian woman for the more aristocratic title it now bears. For some years, however, it continued to wear its old name, and as Mary's river was known to the early California immigrants. Captain Smith is said to have been the first man who lead a company to California by this route. Government officials followed Fremont's nomenclature on the charts of the main river, but the old name still is preserved for the head of the river, above a point near the present railroad station of Deeth, in Elko county. The river is evidently the remains of an ancient lake once occupying this basin, corresponding to Bear river and Salt Lake now. Ruby and Clover lakes here yet indicate the extent of this vast inland fresh-water sea, which at some remote period broke down the rocky wall at Palisades and lost itself on the lower levels of the "Sink." What is yet known as Mary's river heads in the rugged volcanic mesas and canyons of the Owyhee and Goose Creek mountains, along the line of

THE FORTY-SECOND PARALLEL OF LATITUDE.

This is historical ground. Over sixty years ago here a boundary line was established that fixed the northern limits of the Spanish empire on this continent. Here is the great water-shed sending its streams north and south. This dividing ridge meanders through the mountains westward to the Klamath lake region, and breaks out again in the Siskiyou and Klamath mountains of California. The establishment of this boundary settled an old and angry dispute involving five first-class powers. Spain claimed the country indefinitely northward as a portion of the Mexican province; England claimed everything southward to the Spanish territory; Russia interposed interests; France had previously held indefinite claims which had been transferred to the United States by the Louisiana purchase in 1804. When Jefferson bought these claims he purchased "a pig in a poke." He bought a country and then had to find it. He found it by Lewis and Clark's expedition in 1805, and President Monroe secured it by the treaty of 1819, by which the Spanish Viceroy's authority was limited to the country south of the forty-second parallel—as afterwards Great Britain was remanded to the forty-ninth, under Polk's administration, in 1844. The pretensions of conflicting nationalities were mainly settled by this treaty of 1819. A boundary was then established that endures to this day; fixed so indelibly that all the wars and purchases of later times have not annihilated it, separating American States and Territories then undreamed of. This is the boundary line of California, Nevada, Utah, Oregon and Idaho. A half dozen old, gray-haired statesmen, sitting around a green table in Europe, traced with their fingers on the old charts this natural divide, and one day after dinner peaceably settled the whole question of territorial rights on the Pacific slope. That day's work left the United States in possession of the field.

THE OLD MOUNTAINEERS,

However, paid little regard to maps or international treaties. The boundary line was imaginative. No surveyor stretched a chain across that unknown wilderness for many years afterwards. The only monument was that erected by nature, indicated as the divide at the head of all the rivers. It was difficult to trace, and the old mountaineers probably spent little time looking for it. The trappers roamed over the country indiscriminately, undisturbed and indifferent to foreign complications of peace or war. Doubtless Russian standards have glittered in these valleys; here the tricolor of France, the cross of "King George's men," the gorgeous banner of old Spain, and later, the green serpent of Mexico, have fluttered in the Humboldt breezes, to the admiration of wondering Piutes, Bannacks and Shoshones. But the American mountaineers were irrepressible. They drifted year after year through the Rocky Mountain passes from the headwaters of the Missouri, Yellowstone and Colorado, restless, enterprising and always unsettled. Ashley, Sublette, Jackson, Weaver, Walker, Maxwell, Bridger, Carsson, Pegleg Smith, Bill Williams, Peter Lassen; such men as these, following the steps of Jerry Smith down the Humboldt, broke into this old Spanish basin, defiant alike of the scowls of nature, government officials and savages. They first gave tongue to the English language here; affixed their names to the rivers, peaks and passes; taught both Indians and Mexicans to respect American courage, if not American institutions; and lastingly made these desert whirlwinds familiar with a brighter flag.

YOUTH AND NATURE.

Is this the sky and this the very earth
I had such pleasure in when I was young?
And can this be the very same sea song
Heard once within the storm clouds' awful girth,
When a great storm from silence burst to birth,
And winds to whom it seemed I did belong
Made the keen blood in me run swift and strong
With irresistible, tempestuous mirth?

Are these the forests loved of old as well,
Where on May nights enchanted music was?
Are these the fields of soft, delicious grass,
These the old hills with secret things to tell?
O my dead youth, was this inevitable,
That with thy passing Nature, too, should pass

RELATION OF BRAIN WORK TO BLOOD SUPPLY.—Even if it is true that the larger and healthier physique affords more blood for brain use, it does not follow that the larger the supply the greater the amount of brain work possible. The argument assumes that the brain has no limit to its activity, except in the quantity of blood that can be prepared for it. But it needs no scientific education to know that there are other influences which limit the thinker's activity, and that these limitations are somewhere in the mysterious recesses of the brain, or in the forces of which the brain is the organ. The physical health of the brain-worker may be perfect, his digestion unimpaired, his power to assimilate food the same, and yet he may not be able to concentrate his thoughts or carry on a complicated train of reasoning. The defect is not in his body; that is as healthy as ever; nor is it in any of the processes of blood making—these go on as before. The trouble lies in the brain itself, whose capacity for work is measured by some hidden standard of its own, and which gives warning when a cessation of brain work is imperative. The body is a furnace whose power of consuming fuel is greater than the capability of its boiler, the brain, to generate power. To keep the latter in good working condition, something more is necessary than building and feeding the fires. A supplementary but important consideration is, whether the steam beyond a certain point will not be productive of unpleasant consequences in the form of an explosion.—[Popular Science Monthly.

A JAPANESE SQUASH.—A new squash has recently been introduced into this country from Japan. It is a very distinct variety, and has thus far proved a most valuable acquisition to our list. It is of the turban class, and grows to a moderate, uniform size; stem very long and thin, woody and angular, set in a rather deep circular depression; surface deeply ribbed; skin warted in its early stages; color dull orange green, dark when fully ripe. The flesh is of the deepest orange hue, and flavor most exquisite; dry, sweet, fine-grained, and has positively no fiber, a quality not found in any other variety. Another peculiarity of this valuable variety is its thick, solid flesh, leaving very little room for pulp, and having very few seeds, which are small, and not so white and plump as those of the Hubbard. It is also a late keeper, though perhaps not so late as the latter, not having such a hard and shell-like skin. For pies it cannot be surpassed.—[Country Gentleman.

A FLUTTER OF FANS.

Plane-Leaves and Peacocks' Feathers in Old Times.

"The fan of a fair woman is the scepter of the world," is the epigraph of M. Octave Uzanne's dainty book, "L'Eventail." Any reader of English or French poetry or light literature cannot but be familiar with the conspicuous place occupied therein by the fan, and that delicate implement of the Loves and Graces has of late years become more than ever fashionable. A glance at the authorities cited by M. Usanne will show how extensive is the bibliography of the subject, the most important works on which are M. Natalis Rondot's report on the Exhibition of 1851 and M. S. Blondel's Expansion thereof, an octavo "History of Fans" published in 1875, and the well-written catalogue of the Loan Exhibition of fans at South Kensington.

ORIGIN OF THE FAN.

[illegible] course, proceeded from the East, and that at a very early date, though flabellographers are not decided as to the time and method of its invention. Whether Lamsi, the fair Mandarin's daughter, being heated at a public festival, used her mask as the first fan, or an observant native of Tamba, about the year 670, fashioned the fan upon the model of the bat's wings, or the Emperor Wong-wang invented it B. C. 1134, is not important. The fan certainly originated as an article of utility; the leaf of the palm, or lotus, or banana was employed to create a refreshing current of air; then it was imitated in a more precious and substantial material, and when it became a thing of personal use the folded form was devised for the sake of convenience. The Sancrit poet tells how the kingly litter was adorned with a fan, a fly-flapper and an umbrella, and how the sacred fire fell in love with the beautiful and pious daughter of King Nila, and would not burn as brightly when she fanned it as when she breathed on it. In one of the five Hindoo paradises the highest honor and pleasure reserved for the faithful is the privilege of fanning the presiding deity, Ixora.

A FLAG.

In early times the fan in China served the general's flag or baton—was a ral[illegible] sign, like the white plume of [illegible] Navarre. They were at first bamboo leaves or of feathers; th[illegible] first white and afterwards em[illegible] Their original form was rectangul[illegible] wards they took the shape of t[illegible] or great water lily. M. d[illegible] his "Voyage en Chine," [illegible] list of the uses to which [illegible] The dandy is known by [illegible] of a silken fan, as his br[illegible] lands by his crutch-cane. Yo[illegible] misses flirt with their fan-telegra[illegible] pertly as do the Spanish senoritas. Mothers fan their children to sleep, schoolmasters correct negligent pupils with the handles of their learned fans.

AS AN ALBUM.

The employment of the fan as an autograph album is an old Chinese idea, but the Occident has not adopted the stiff fans of thin golden leaves, ivory or jade of the East, nor yet the bronze or iron fan of commandment of the Japanese middle ages, which was baton and battle-ax in one. The fans of ancient Egypt decidedly were not triflings. In its cosmogony the fan was the emblem of happiness and celestial repose, and thus the fortunate triumphator was surrounded with fans and flowering branches. Mariette Bey unearthed a stele on which was represented Osiris with his fan-bearer behind him; the mural paintings of Peni-Haassan show women waving square fans, and the frescoes of the palace of Medinet-Abou at Thebes depict Rameses III. in all his glory, with a suite of fan-bearers agitating elegant fans of semi-circular shape, brilliantly painted, though, after all, not so splendid as those seen in the earlier triumph of Horus, when, it may be added, the fan was an accessory of exalted rank or an emblem of high military command. Its use was as extensive among the Medes, Persians, Assyrians, but it came into still greater prominence among the classical peoples. The two favored attendants of the haughty Roman matron, whenever she took her rides abroad, borne high upon the necks of slaves, were those w[illegible] bore her parasol and [illegible]

AS A FASCINATION WEAPON.

Though the Roman beauties did [illegible] themselves, but left that to their sl[illegible] their gallants, they were not unacq[illegible] with the code of the fan, as w[illegible] passage in Ovid's "Art of Love," where the use of the fan is prescribed as a potent weapon in the arsenal of fascination. Like the princess mentioned by the Sanscrit poet, the vestal virgins employed fans to keep the sacred fire glowing. All the Greek writers, and especially the poets or raconteurs of the erotic sort, speak of the fan, and Pauw describes the more elaborate fans as being made of feathers, arranged in lotus form round a wooden handle. For less stately occasions, however, a bough of the myrtle or acacia, or the superb leaf of the plane-tree, would be in requisition, and it is even contended that the thyrsus itself had at least a secondary employment as a fan or sunshade. The tail of the peacock came into great vogue with the dames of Greece, especially in Phrygia, as a fan or a model for a fan, and the plumes of the ostrich and the peacock were used alike for the earliest and most elaborate of Oriental fans. In the "Arabian Nights" the awakened sleeper, Abou-Hassan, who fancies himself Commander of the Faithful, is waited upon and fanned by seven fair maidens, to wit: Alabaster Neck, Coral Mouth, Sunbeam, Moonface, Heart's Delight, Pleasure-of-the-Eyes and Sugar-Cane, with such fans. Heligobalus, whose tastes were decidedly Oriental, employed in lieu of a sceptre a fan splendid with golden leaves, jewels and painted feathers.

OTHER USES OF THE FAN.

The sacred fire of the Persian kings, which was borne to war on a chariot drawn by four white horses and escorted by 365 youths clad all in yellow, was too sacred to be kindled into activity by the breath, and so use was made of a fan. The fan of peacock's feathers, such as Propertius describes, was one of the attributes of the month of August personified, as witness a painting unearthed at Herculaneum, and a similar fan hangs beside the tutelary deity of that month in some of the old calendars. The fan appears frequently on Etruscan antiquities, and in many and curious forms, though the general idea is always the same—a handle and a flat surface attached, as in modern fans. One well-known vase shows a courtesan placing a wreath of flowers on the head of her soldier-lover, while a flabellifera stands behind her chair, and a girl playing on the double-flute dances softly before them; and another represents a Roman beauty couched negligently on her lectulus while a naked slave-girl anoints her with perfume, and another girl behind fans her gently with a tabella, one of the small tablet-fans such as Ovid speaks of in the third book of his "Art of Love." The Christian [illegible] contra[illegible] pressed the fan into [illegible]

IN WORSH[illegible]

According to St. Jerome, it [illegible] blem of continence, and an old French book on religious customs and ceremonies records that the Apostle James recommended the use of the sacred fan in his liturgy. The great feather fans brought from Asia to the Roman Court by the Eastern Emperors survive in the fans borne beside the Pope, as not the least characteristic of the insignia of his office. The flabellum was employed till the close of the thirteenth century to protect the priest officiating at mass from heat and insects. Moreri says that in the abbey of Tournus and the Dominican monastery of Prouisse fans were used by the deacons to prevent flies from falling into the chalice. The former fan was exhibited in 1867 at the Paris Exposition. It was not unlike our modern fans in shape, but with a wider spread and a longer handle. On each side was a long Latin inscription, and it was embellished with figures of saints, each with the golden nimbus and the name written in uncials of the ninth century, surrounded by Byzantine traceries and foliage, with animals and monsters, the whole forming a design of unique beauty and importance.

Out of Tune.

When the tones of a musical instrument becomes harsh and discordant, we say "it is out of tune." The same may be said of that far more wonderful and complicated piece of mechanism, the human structure, when it becomes disordered. Not only actual disease, but those far more common causes, overwork, mental anxiety and fast living, may impair its vigor and activity. The best remedy for a partial collapse of the vital energies, from these as from other causes, is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which are at the same time an agreeable and mind-cheering cordial, and the best possible invigorant in all cases of debility. It is an incomparable stomachic and anti-bilious medicine, eradicates fever and ague, and prevents subsequent attacks. It remedies with certainty and thoroughness bowel and kidney complaints, dyspepsia, nervousness, rheumatic troubles, and many other bodily ailments. It also counteracts influences which predispose to disease.

THE Judge of the Superior Court of Alameda last week took occasion to read a jury a severe lecture, telling it that its verdict was in utter disregard of the law and the facts, and that he could conceive of no reason in the world for such a verdict by jurors under oath. The winning attorney protested at this, and the Judge fined him $100 for contempt, and he had to pay it or go to jail. This vigor and bravery on the part of a Court will have a tendency to impress upon jurors that arbitrary action by them shall not hereafter pass unrebuked, and while they have the power to find as they please, that there are Courts brave enough to criticise them as they deserve. It is becoming too common a thing for juries to find verdicts arbitrarily and without much reference to the facts, and to ignore the moral and legal obligations of the oath.

THE PENNSYLVANIA INDEPENDENTS.

The Independent Republicans of Pennsylvania are going to work with energy and prudence. Their Convention has adopted a platform which makes Civil Service reform the test question of the campaign, and which at the same time invites the support of all who believed in Garfield and his policy. The denunciation of "bossism," political assessments, "machine" politics, and all the abuses which have come to characterize the "regular" organization in Pennsylvania, will undoubtedly appeal strongly to thousands of Republicans who have long been dissatisfied with the rule of the "Bosses," and who are now offered an opportunity to repudiate the latter without going outside of the party. The nominations of the Independents appear to be good, and they have an additional element of strength in the adhesion of United States Senator Mitchell. This revolt is incidentally a condemnation of the Administration, and it will demonstrate to what extent "stalwartism" is really opposed by the masses of the Republicans in one of the great States. It is the most important political movement that has occurred since "Grantism" was repudiated and broken down at Chicago, and it is in the same line. It must be regarded, in the light of the Independent platform, as embodying much more than a local quarrel. It is the protest of the Republicans who hoped that in President Garfield they were to find a political reformer who would put an end to "machine" politics, encourage Civil Service reform, and restore his party to the vigorous and healthy condition in which it was at the beginning of Grant's first term.

Whether the optimistic view of Garfield's intentions was well grounded or not, need not be considered here. It is enough that he had been elected on a distinct basis of opposition to "Grantism" and "Bossism," and that the enthusiasm behind him represented the hopes and expectations of the reform element in the party. That element has reluctantly and slowly reached the conclusion that it cannot rely upon the present Administration to take up and carry forward the Garfield ideas; that, on the contrary, it has given itself wholly into the hands of the "Stalwarts." Believing, then, that it is useless to look for any voluntary reform in that direction, and unwilling longer to support leaders who abuse their opportunities and degrade their party, these Republicans have at last determined to separate themselves from "Bossism" altogether, and to see whether it is not possible to rebuke that faction by showing it that it neither is nor controls the Republican party.

The Independents have taken all that is sound in the Republican doctrine, with the one exception of Protection, and it could not be expected that any party in Pennsylvania would be able at present to free itself from that abuse. In all other respects the platform is strong and clean and clear, and Republicans can stand upon it without any qualms or doubts. The best feature of it is the emphatic assertion of the necessity of Civil Service reform. This vital issue is thus brought to the front and fixed there. The voters of Pennsylvania will have to declare themselves upon it, and the canvass will serve as an educational agency from which the whole country will benefit. For the first time the spoilsmen will be forced on the defensive. They have never been really troubled by their "machine" principles before, because their only formidable opponents were the Democrats, and everyone knows that the Democrats hold to the spoils doctrine quite as strongly as the Republicans. Now, however, the conditions are changed. The spoilsmen are called upon to support their practice by argument, and they assuredly have a very disagreeable task before them.

The force of the new movement may be gathered from the admissions of its supporters. They declare that for many years past the Republicans of Pennsylvania have not been represented at all. Senator Stewart, the nominee for Governor, in accepting the honor conferred upon him by the Convention, said: "The honest "convictions of the Republicans of Penn"sylvania have not found expression in "any real Convention held during the last "decade." There is a great deal of significance in this. When the intelligence and honesty of a party has submitted to repression and misrepresentation for ten years, and at last revolts against corruption and partisan tyranny, it brings to the act of rebellion the accumulated exasperation and indignation of those ten years of misrule, and is thus supplied with a fund of energy very much more than sufficient to carry it through a campaign.

So respectable, earnest, patriotic and vigorous is this movement that it seems possible for it to carry the State. But whether it can disintegrate the spoils ring at once, or can only defeat it by handing over the State to the Democrats, we cannot doubt that it will destroy "Bossism" in Pennsylvania, and shake "Stalwartism" in its intrenchments throughout the country. For the opposition dare not enter upon a free discussion of the points in issue. It dare not undertake to defend the spoils system and all that it involves, openly. The justification of corruption is beyond even the hardihood of the "Bosses," and therefore it will be forced to let the main question go by default. And this is but the beginning of the end. The reform element of the Republican party will follow the example set it in Pennsylvania, and the attempt to restore "Grantism" will be condemned even more emphatically than it was at Chicago last year. The Independent movement in Pennsylvania consequently is of national interest and importance, and tens of thousands of sound Republicans throughout the Union will desire the success of the bold champions of reform and party regeneration.

THE ARREARS OF RENT BILL.

So far as can be gathered from the imperfect descriptions of the measure which have been telegraphed, the arrears of rent bill appears to offer the most important advantages to the Irish tenant farmers, though at a cost to the Government of very dangerous concessions. It is said that its effect will be to lift some 300,000 tenants out of a perfect Slough of Despond, by relieving them of the hopeless burden of from ten to fifteen years arrears of rent, which they never could have paid, and which made them helpless, and little better than serfs. The relief will, it is said, extend altogether to nearly 600,000 tenants, representing 3,500,000 souls. It will give all these people a fresh chance in life. They will start out free from debt, so far as rent is concerned, and with the amount of one year's rent in their hands. Such a measure can only be characterized as revolutionary. It will change the condition of more than half the Irish people, and, in conjunction with the Land Act, it ought to enable them to assume an entirely new and greatly improved position. It would seem that with the complete accomplishment of the changes involved in this most radical measure the principle grievances of Ireland must cease to exist. Causes of dissatisfaction no doubt will remain so long as home rule has not been granted, but the important point is that these grievances will thenceforward be solely political ones, and will not be complicated by questions of popular suffering, indigence and debt. Of course if the tenants do not help themselves they can easily drift back into their former embarrassment. The Government cannot prevent men from getting in debt, though it may pay their debts. But when the best is said that can be conceived for the possibilities of the Irish situation, the Government has still another great difficulty to encounter, and that is the effect of this measure upon the people of England and Ireland. If the tenants of Ireland are to have their debts remitted, why not the tenants of the rest of the United Kingdom? There are struggling and embarrassed farmers in Scotland and England who would be very glad to have the Government come to their relief, and sponge off the slate for them. There are landlords in England and Scotland who would welcome a proposal even for the scaling of their arrearages, if the Government would undertake to pay them three-fourths of the amount. And then there are the taxpayers who are neither landlords nor tenants, but who may very naturally object to being made to pay the bills of both these classes. In short there are the germs of infinite trouble and mischief in the new bill, and even though it should go far towards pacifying Ireland, it may nevertheless prove to have been an almost fatal mistake.

THE GENUINE COUNTERFEIT BONDS.

The Government and Treasury Department may well be agitated if the report be true that impressions of the plates from which the bonds are printed have been procured by counterfeiters, and nobody knows how many bonds struck off by them. For it is evident that if this is the case it will be almost impossible to distinguish between the true and the false bonds. Being struck off from the same plates they must be identical, and we suppose that the counterfeits could only be detected by a painful tracing up of the disposition and numbering of the genuine ones. Even discovery of duplications would not afford any clue, since it would then be next to impossible to determine which of the duplicates was the real bond. Nor can the Government have any guarantee that it has got to the bottom of this business, for no matter how many impressions of the dies may be surrendered or discovered, it is always possible and even probable that as many more have escaped detection or been withheld. It is highly improbable that the men who had such a "bonanza" would be willing to give it up, especially as they must be fully aware of the Government's helplessness. And it is evident that the effect of this most alarming discovery upon the bonds themselves must be very serious. It appears that copies, or to speak more correctly, duplicates, of bonds have been struck off in unknown quantities, and that the makers of these duplicates still hold the dies. The Government cannot ascertain how many duplicate bonds have been put on the market, nor can it put a stop to the duplication of these bonds. It is therefore possible that the holders of all such bonds may be panic-struck, and that they may depreciate, and it is difficult to see what course the Government can take in the circumstances. Should Congress be appealed to to protect the issue by guaranteeing the payment of all bonds of that issue—a resort which might be thought necessary because of the impossibility of distinguishing the false from the true bonds—this measure would perhaps only serve as a premium upon counterfeiting, since it would secure a market for as many new duplicates as the forgers could make. The situation appears to be the most serious that has ever occurred in connection with the Government securities, and it does not seem that the Treasury Department is at all confident of its ability to cure the evil. Two absolutely indispensable factors are lacking, viz., knowledge of the number of bonds duplicated, and assurance as to the cessation of the business. At present, in fact, the counterfeiters hold the trump cards, and the Government detectives have nothing in their hands. How this will end it is impossible to conjecture, but it is already apparent that it may produce very serious and mischievous complications.

A BUNKO MAN'S POLICY.

The rascal who decoyed the venerable Charles Francis Adams into his den, and then swindled him out of checks for $20,000, has been put on trial, no doubt greatly to his surprise, and not a little to the shaking of his favorite theory. According to his own confession he had been for a long time practicing the same kind of fraud upon well-connected and highly-respectable persons. He did not attempt to persuade them that they were not being robbed, but boldly relied upon their fear of what society would say of them, to obtain his plunder. It appears that his knowledge of the weakness of most men under such circumstances had stood him in good stead until he tried the trick on Charles Francis Adams. He then discovered that John Quincy Adams was in no way disposed to pay $20,000 for the privilege of keeping his father's name out of the papers, and that on the contrary he was very firmly resolved to arrest and prosecute the impudent scoundrel who had the hardihood to come to him with a demand for the money. This case shows, however, what indeed has never been a secret to shrewd observers, that for the most part a swindler can safely trade upon the fear men entertain of public opinion. Here is a "bunko-steerer" who hardly took any trouble to deceive his victims, being confident that if he once got them into his den, and had induced them to play at some of his swindling games, they would submit to blackmail rather than have the fact known. No doubt in most cases it is mere egotism that makes men submit to these frauds. They cannot endure that their friends should have the opportunity of laughing at them, or should be given reason to think lightly of their sagacity. This the "bunko-steerer" knows, and he traffics securely upon the frailties of mankind. John Quincy Adams, however, has shown how to deal with this class of cases. Before a resolute purpose the swindler is defenseless, and then his turn for punishment arrives, as in the present instance.

FROM BAD TO WORSE.

The Russian Government is behaving very badly about the Jewish persecution. Its brutal apathy is encouraging the populace to greater extremes, and the latest intelligence is to the effect that a mob has burned a Jewish village, and amused itself by roasting the Jewish babies alive. Meanwhile the Czar's Council goes on discussing provisions which shall make the residence of the Jews in Russia intolerable, and the Russian press is forbidden to publish any more accounts of the outrages. The Czar shows phenomenal folly in this, to say nothing of his inhumanity. The education in cruelty and bloodthirstiness which he is giving his barbarous subjects may at no distant period lead them to demand other and greater victims than the poor Jews, and then, when his own palaces and those of his nobles are burning, and the same brutal hands which now toss Jewish babies into the fire, are doing the same to Russian children, the world will perhaps look on, shrug its shoulders, and remark that the Czar showed his people the way or they would never have found it.

A WAY TO CELEBRATE.—Several newspapers have of late been talking about wanting some new way suggested of celebrating the Fourth of July. The Yolo Mail makes a suggestion, by which each neighborhood can have its own celebration. That paper says: "Take the money heretofore spent for tomfoolery and give it to the speakers and poets and musicians. Offer prizes for the best essays and declamations on the subjects of Republics and Freedom and Political Economy. Give the young people an impetus to learn something of the history of our nation, and let the Fourth of July be a day when all work is laid aside and each and every citizen shows his love of country by giving at least one day to a genuine celebration and thankfulness of its establishment."

The latest esthetic slang the ladies use when reproving their admiring gentlemen friend is: "You flatter too awfully perfectly much."

DOMESTIC NEWS.

United States Senate.

WASHINGTON, May 25th.—The bill to reimburse the Creek orphan fund was taken up—35 to 15. [It appropriates a quarter of a million dollars.]

The bill went over, and the Senate considered the Japanese indemnity bill, which also went over without action, and the Senate adjourned.

House of Representatives.

WASHINGTON, May 25th.—The Mackey-Dibble contested election case was called up by Calkins immediately after the reading of the journal.

Randall raised the question of consideration, and Kenna interjected a motion to adjourn, on which Randall demanded the ayes and noes.

A motion to adjourn was lost—ayes 0, noes 133.

The Speaker submitted the request of Curtin, for leave of absence until Thursday on account of important business.

Hoar and Randall objected.

Randall demanded the ayes and noes. Leave of absence was refused—ayes 13, noes 134.

Kenna then moved that when the House adjournd it be until Saturday, while Randall moved to amend it by substituting Monday.

Randall's motion was lost by a vote of 146 to 1.

Kenna's motion was lost by a vote of 149 to 1, Wood of New York voting with the Republicans.

Filibustering was then continued.

Shortly before 3 further proceedings under the call were dispensed with, and the question recurred on the motion for a recess. Lost by ayes 3—Hardenberg of New Jersey, Phelps of Connecticut and Blackwood of New York—noes 144.

The Speaker cast a vote in order to make a quorum.

Roll call followed roll call upon dilatory motions until 4:45, when the quorum was again broken. Then, after another call of the House, 5 o'clock having arrived, the House took a recess until 8.

When the House reassembled the galleries were well filled, and on the floor there was a much larger attendance than is usually secured at a night session.

A call of the House was interrupted several times by other roll calls on motions to excuse various members from the evening session, and was not concluded until 9:45, when further proceedings under the call were dispensed with, and the question recurred on a motion made prior to recess, that when the House adjourns to-day it be to meet on Monday next.

The Republicans were able to secure only 118 votes on this point. Consequently there was no quorum, and the House adjourned.

The Situation in the House.

WASHINGTON, May 25th. — There are rumors to-night of trouble in the House to-morrow on the point of order made to-day by McCordale, and withdrawn, that the quorum consideration could not be raised against a contested election case. The Speaker has been seen in frequent consultation with prominent Republicans, and he had a written statement that was averred to be a decision on some such point of order as was raised by the Iowa member. Mr. Miller, of the Elections Committee, understood the point to be based on the constitutional power vested in the House to judge of the qualification and election of its members. The House for such purpose consisted of a quorum of its members. The question of the right of a member to his seat was of the highest privilege, and no rule of the House could be exercised by the minority to prevent a quorum from performing its constitutional right, and should the Speaker sustain the ruling he would refuse to entertain any dilatory motions from the Democrats. Congressman Carlisle (Democrat) said there was a long line of precedents to sustain the right of any member to raise a question of consideration against an election case, and to say that a member had not the right to move to adjourn would be to brand its author as a fool. If a Speaker should rule that a question of consideration could not be raised, an appeal would be made and filibustering resumed on the appeal. This morning a list of two squads of Democrats was made out, one gang to relieve the other at intervals in the filibustering, to allow time for rest. Randall, Carlisle, Blackburn and Kenner were assigned as lobbyists, and Messrs. Ermentrout and Clark as whippers in.

Capital Notes.

WASHINGTON, May 25th.—Page presented in the House to-day a petition of the Viticultural Commission of California, asking for the passage of the bill taxing the imitation of still and sparkling wine, and to prevent their adulteration. Referred to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Purchases of silver bullion at the Treasury Department to-day amounted to 285,000 ounces. Offers of delivery of 535,000 ounces more at prices above London were rejected.

Senator Miller's joint resolution authorizing the President to declare martial law in Alaska, has been considered by the Judiciary Committee, and will be reported adversely.

Samuel J. Hilborn, of Vallejo, is expected to be appointed United States District Attorney next month. Senator Miller has filed Hilborn's papers at the Department of Justice, and recommended the appointment.

The Sharpe-Conkling Controversy.

CINCINNATI, May 25th.—The Commercial's Albany special says: Ex-Speaker George H. Sharpe has been questioned by several friends in relation to Conkling's comments in the New York Herald on the Senatorial struggle.

"Did you inspire the article in the Kingston Freeman which drew out this statement of Conkling?" he was asked.

"I did not," replied the ex-Speaker. "I had no knowledge of its existence until it was in print. The article appeared in the Freeman of Friday last. I was here at the time, and did not return to Kingston until Sunday; but I had no connection with the article whatever. Mr. Marseilles, the editor of the paper, is responsible for it, and I think he knows how to take care of himself. You know how the Freeman was one of the three or four stalwart papers that advocated Conkling's re-election. Marseilles was here a great deal during that struggle, and has a good deal of personal knowledge of the subject."

"A year ago it was reported, and the statement has frequently been repeated since, that at a conference of stalwarts in New York in May previous to the election, you made a speech, in which you earnestly urged Conkling to go to Albany and seek a re-election."

"I never made such a speech. It is a falsehood."

"Did you advise Conkling to go to Albany and seek a re-election?"

"No. Mr. Conkling does not give the names of the men who advised him to go to Albany. I should like to know their names. I don't know who they were, and yet I think I would have known if any one knew them. Let Conkling disclose the names of these men, and expose them to the shame of having given him such advice. Whom did he consult in Washington before resigning his place as United States Senator? Did he consult any of his friends here or in this State? He never consulted them. He went back on them, and now seeks to put his defeat for re-election on their shoulders. Yes, let us know who was responsible for that defeat."

Governor Crittenden and the James Gang.

NEW YORK, May 25th.—It has been ascertained from a member of Governor Crittenden's party, in this city, now on his return to Missouri, that he will conclude negotiations for the surrender of Frank James, and possibly other members of the James gang, and thus put an end to the organization of brigands in Missouri. Frank James is now in Jackson county, and instead of meditating more mischief is represented as being anxious to make the best terms possible for himself. Governor Crittenden is fully informed as to his whereabouts, and means to have him in custody inside of ten days. It is asserted that the whole James gang will be broken up. The plans are all laid, and only await the Governor's return for the execution.

Smelting Works Destroyed by Fire.

LEADVILLE (Col.), May 25th.—Early this morning the Grant Company's smelting works were completely destroyed by fire. The origin of the fire is supposed to have been an explosion in the furnace. The loss is estimated at between $300,000 and $400,000; insurance, $65,000. These works were the largest of the kind in the world. Over 300 men are thrown out of employment here and quite a number at Omaha, where the refining works of this company are located. The works will be rebuilt.

Reign of Terror in Louisiana.

BATON ROUGE, May 25th.—A reign of terror exists in St. Martin's parish over the lynching of Joseph E. Jenkins and Eugene Azar, a negro, on the 16th instant. Bands of armed negroes are going about in St. Martinsville swearing vengeance, and a war of races is imminent. Sixteen of the lynchers have been arrested, and are now in the parish jail. The lynching of the two men was particularly atrocious. Jenkins' hands were not tied, and when he grasped the rope the lynchers broke both of his arms. His wife, who was among the spectators, also earnestly begged for his life. He had the week previously waylaid his brother-in-law, Raphael Castille, near the Breaux bridge, and shot and killed him. Azar had been arrested some time previous for killing a young man at Thibodeaux, but at the inquest the killing appeared to be in self-defense, and he was let out on $300 bail.

The Presbyterian General Assembly.

SPRINGFIELD (Ill.), May 25th.—In the General Assembly this morning the action by which the majority and minority reports on home missions was referred to a special committee was reconsidered, and the reports were sent to the standing committee. The report of the Board of Education occupied considerable time, and created the most interesting feature of the session. During the morning a dispatch was received from the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church now in session at Atlanta, Ga., as follows:

In order to remove all difficulties in the way of that full and formal fraternal correspondence which on our part we are prepared to accept, we adopt the following minute, to wit: that while receding from no principle, we do hereby declare our regret for and the withdrawal of all expressions of our Assembly which may be regarded as reflecting upon or offensive to the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Churches of America.

Resolved, That a copy of this paper be sent to the General Assembly now in session at Springfield, Ill., for their prayerful consideration, and mutatis mutandis, for their reciprocal concurrence, as affording a basis for the exchange of delegates forthwith.

R. K. SMOAT, Moderator.
JAMES R. WILSON, Clerk.

This was received with great delight and referred to the Committee on Correspondence, and it is understood will elicit a most cordial response.

The Baptists and the Chinese Question.

NEW YORK, May 25th.—At to-day's session of the American Baptist Home Missionary Society Jubilee Meeting, the Committee on Chinese Missions presented a report, which was adopted, taking grounds against the anti-Chinese bill. Rev. G. W. Lasher, of Ohio, presented a report recommending that the Society expend $200,000 in missionary work among the foreign population of this country.

The Christiancy Divorce Case—Testimony of the Ex-Senator.

WASHINGTON, May 25th.—In the Christiancy divorce suit, the testimony of ex-Senator Christiancy is being taken. In connection with it several important letters have been put in, among them a letter written by Christiancy on the 18th of August, 1878, to his wife's father, W. Lugenbeel, with regard to Mrs. Christiancy's alleged bad conduct. It begins with reference to correspondence between himself and Miss Lugenbeel before their marriage, correspondence in which Christiancy says he endeavored to carefully and scrupulously convince her that she ought not to marry him, and in which he insisted many times that she should reconsider the matter. He admitted that he loved her, and said if after a full and mature consideration she still wished to marry him, he would consent. He declared that she still wished him to make her his wife, and as a gentleman he had only one course to take. The marriage took place, and if the love which she professed for him had really existed, nothing, he says, could have made him happier. On the morning of the wedding, however, she heard of the return of James Lugenbeel and fainted. When they reached Philadelphia, and were alone, she told him she had been engaged to Lugenbeel; that the engagement had been broken, and she did not know how deeply she loved him until his name was mentioned. She said she had perjured herself in her marriage vows, was miserable, and wanted a divorce forthwith. When they returned to this city, all went well until she met Lugenbeel in an art gallery, and from that time she seemed dejected and desperate, and again asked for a divorce. Soon after this Frank Anderson became attentive to her, and her affections seemed to attach themselves alternatively to him and to Lugenbeel. Again came the frenzy for a divorce. Finally she quieted down and appeared to think more of her husband. After she returned in August, 1876, her love for Anderson broke out afresh, and her hatred for her husband increased. She also had a fondness for Sam Register, of Baltimore, and for one Mayer. She often declared she wished her husband dead, and said he was all that stood between her and happiness. Christiancy then refers to the fact that his wife went to the Healing Springs in preference to going to Saratoga or Kansas with him, and says he felt suspicious that she had gone to the springs with some old lover, and when she wrote him she taunted him with being old; did not pretend to love him; said she would not live with him; that she would spend all the money she pleased; that she would run him in debt, and that she wanted a divorce. The husband replied that he could not quarrel with her, nor would he be ruined in the way she proposed.

The Tombstone Postmastership.

WASHINGTON, May 25th.—The Critic says: The long-contested squabble over the Postmastership at Tombstone, Arizona, was settled finally to-day by the commissioning of F. C. Brooks as Postmaster. Postmaster John P. Clum, the incumbent, was a strong candidate for reappointment, was nominated by the President and confirmed by the Senate some time since, but his commission was held up, and in the meantime Brooks received the nomination, and was also confirmed, and his commission withheld for several months during the hotly-contested fight over the matter by friends of both parties, in which revolvers and other implements of war freely figured. Clum, besides being Postmaster, is Mayor of Tombstone, and has at various times been compelled to flee the wrath of a certain faction there hostile to his reign. More trouble is apprehended when Brooks endeavors to take possession of the office as Postmaster.

The Pennsylvania Political Situation.

WASHINGTON, May 25th.—The Republican members of the Pennsylvania delegation in Congress regard with apprehension the action of the Philadelphia Independent Convention yesterday. The nominations are conceded to be of a good character, and likely to command the support of many Republican voters. While there is no disposition to predict the defeat of the nominees of the Harrisburg Convention, there is a general feeling that the Democrats have a chance to capture the State.

The Delaware Greenbackers.

Crop Prospects in Illinois.

SPRINGFIELD, May 25th.—The State Department of Agriculture says: "The reports received are not calculated to inspire confidence for the average crop. Corn planting has been delayed by rains and cold weather, and much of the seed rotted in the ground. Chinch-bugs are seen in large numbers in various places, and the army-worm is beginning to work. Both are liable to do much damage."

Political "Shake Up" in New York.

NEW YORK, May 25th.—The Times' Washington correspondent says: It is rumored that the politicians are soon to be aroused by a sort of "shake up" from New York city to Buffalo. PHILOSOPHY IN EBONY. — Remember, young man, dat de man what han'les de most books ain't de best eddycated. I knowed a bookbinder once dat couldn't read. I may differ frum de religious folks when I say dat I's got more respect fur de woodpecker den I has fur de dove. De dove is 'ceitful. He'll coo around an' coax yer into sympathy, but as soon as yer back is turned he goes ober inter de field and pulls up de young wheat. All dis time de woodpecker has been diggin' a worm outen a tree. Ebery provision ob nature may be wise, but I doan see why a body should suffer so much in cuttin' teeth. A dog doan hab no trubble, neder does a coon, but nature gives fits to the baby. An' dis, de preachers tell me, is on account ob de political trickery ob Adam. I'se glad dat he was counted out ob de garden ob Eden. Everybody what walks de flo' wid a teethin' chile is a natural enemy ter dat man. I had noticed dat all great men retains in arter life de early impressions of childhood. Dis scar heah is where my fodder hit me wid a sassafras sprout.—[Little Rock Gazette.

SUCCESS IN LIFE.—Success in life depends, to a very great extent, on a good digestion, a trustworthy set of nerves, and the power of being always "there or thereabouts" when the course is cleared. The time is rapidly approaching when an interview with a really pleasant fool will afford a most charming change and welcome relief from the most overwhelming knowingness and priggishness of our premature brethren. Nor is the mischief of the masculine gender only. The Juggernaut car of the driving and competitive system is crushing beneath its wheels many of our daughters and sisters. The female candidates for the "locals," the aspirants for the class lists and the tripos, go in for a strain to which the average female organization is unequal. The way is strewn with wrecks, broken hopes, broken health; but we suppose that the great principle of the survival of the fittest will here assert itself, and that in a future day it will be said of some great light that "his mother was 'senior wrangler' bracketed with the Bishop of Banbury."—[London Globe.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

SWINDLERS ARRESTED.—Information was received on Wednesday last from Truckee by special officer Burke, of the railroad detective force, that a Chinaman had been duped at that place and swindled out of $500 by a confidence operator, who pawned for that amount with the Chinaman what he represented to be a bar of gold bullion of the value of $5,000. Subsequently the Chinaman had the bar tested, and found that his cupidity had got the better of his judgment, as the bar was counterfeit. The matter was placed by Burke in the hands of officer Tim Lee and Deputy Sheriff William Arlington to work up, and they yesterday arrested two men, George S. Cooke and John Ross, who have a reputation of being sharpers, as being concerned in the matter. It is said that Cooke is the party who received the money from the Chinaman. It is further said that another man and a woman are also concerned. The four had been in Truckee about a week and received the brick in a satchel checked from Reno. The identity and whereabouts of the third party and woman are now unknown. Yesterday officers Lee and Arlington found Ross and Cooke on the street at Fourth and K, arrested and confined them in the station-house. It was ascertained that they were stopping at a lodging-house on Fourth street, between K and L, and had baggage there. Later a report came that the third man was at the lodging-house. Officers Lee and Brizzell went to the house immediately, and found that he had just left with two valises. The trail was followed to a room in the City Hotel. The door of the room was unlocked for the officers by the clerk, and the occupant was found in the act of searching the valises. The man proved to be C. E. Martin, who was arrested recently for embezzlement of funds of a circus company and discharged for want of jurisdiction by the Police Court. He was taken to jail and will probably be prosecuted for burglary, as the officers do not believe that he was concerned in the gold brick fraud. They think he might have known something about the party and by sharp practice got possession of their baggage. When Cooke was arrested he had in his possession $57 in coin, a diamond pin, a diamond ring and a fine watch, the jewelry being valued at $700. City Attorney Anderson, on behalf of the victim, has attached this property. The prisoners have employed Isaac S. Brown as their counsel.

MERCHANDISE REPORT.—The following freight passed Ogden for Sacramento on the 22d instant: For N. S. Arnold & Co., 1 box bolts; Terry McMorry, 1 box licorice; Thos. Harper, 1 box shoes; B. Cohen, 4 boxes picture frames, 1 box oil paintings; Huntington, Hopkins & Co., 2 boxes finishing nails, 2 boxes vulcanized fiber, 1 bale packing, 285 bales steel; W. F. Peterson, 3 tubs and 1 box maple sugar; Adams, McNeill & Co., 40 boxes maple sugar; A. A. Van Voorhies & Co., 1 case celluloid martingale rings; Weinstock & Lubin, 4 boxes shoes; Hobby & Co., 1 car stone fruit-jars; G. W. Chesley & Co., 80 boxes flasks; Scott & Muir, 1 box gas fixtures; G. B. Corwin, 2 cases cigars; Whittier, Fuller & Co., 2 cases molding; Bidwell & Cook, 4 boxes maple sugar; E. C. Hopkins, 5 tubs and 5 boxes maple sugar; Kirk, Geary & Co., 88 boxes bottles; A. Stoll, 1 box hardware; W. A. & C. S. Houghton, 1 box ruled paper; E. Lyon & Co., 1 box hosiery, 2 boxes dry goods, 3 boxes cotton goods, 1 box worsted goods.

POLICE COURT.—Yesterday these cases were disposed of by the Police Court: P. Kelly was fined $50, T. Trainor was fined $40 for misdemeanor, and Ah Jim, for petit larceny, was fined $30, each being given the privilege of paying their respective fines in coin, or by serving out in the County Jail a day for each dollar of the fine. These cases were dismissed: Lem Sam, misdemeanor, and Ah Sam, petit larceny. Jim Green pleaded guilty to being drunk and was fined $10 or ten days in the city prison. John Brady acknowledged a similar impeachment against his sobriety and was rewarded in the same manner. The cases of Ah Sing, Ah Sovey and Ah Goey, charged with running a game of fan tan, were continued to May 27th. Mrs. Thomas, battery, continued to June 2d, and Thomas Fitzgerald was discharged from the imputation of having disturbed the peace.

GRAIN PROSPECT.—A gentleman in this city yesterday from Colusa county states that the grain crop in that county, notwithstanding what has been said to the contrary, will be a good average crop. Barley upon summer-fallowed land, which was ripening at the time of the recent north wind, will be shrunken in berry to some extent, but that which was winter-sown is looking well. He thinks the grain crop of Colusa county taken together will be an average crop, which is much better than former reports from that section. Some portions of the upper Sacramento country is said to be under unusually fine grain prospects to the present time.

A special match is also talked of between Lafayette Derr and F. Coons for $100.

NEARLY A RUNAWAY.—Yesterday afternoon, at about 3:30 o'clock, Merrill Odell's horse came near indulging in a runaway. The animal was tied in front of his owner's shop, at Tenth and K streets, and, becoming frightened at a blanket which had got under his feet, began to kick and try to get away, but was stopped before much damage had been done. The dashboard was kicked to pieces.

BOARD OF POLICE COMMISSIONERS.—The Board of Police Commissioners met yesterday at 2 o'clock P. M., a full Board present. The minutes of the last meeting were read and approved. The charges against officer Carroll were set for hearing Saturday, at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. The Board then adjourned until that hour.

WEDNESDAY'S RAIN.—S. H. Gerrish, of this city, reports the rainfall of Wednesday as amounting to .208 of an inch, making a total for the month of .239 of an inch, and for the season 14.960 inches. METROPOLITAN THEATER.

A good house was called out at the Metropolitan Theater last night by the Curtis troupe. The play is "Sam'l of Posen," and it was evidently written for the "star" of the company, M. B. Curtis, who was well known here as a stock actor a few years ago, but who has recently found the measure of his capacity in character acting on the model of the Jewish commercial drummer. The play is a comedy with slices of melodrama rudely inserted into its composition. It is light, inconsequential, and has but a slender thread of a plot. In a literary sense, it is worthy of no consideration. When this is said, it is a relief to turn to the company, which is a pleasing one. It embraces that old-time actor, Harry Eytinge, in a part for which he is physically, as well as generally, admirably qualified, but it is beneath his ability, very far; J. N. Long, an old favorite, and Carrie Wyatt, a California-developed actress of promise, who have light parts. The real hard work of the play is done by two ladies—Miss Josie Wilmere, who makes an insignificant part a prominent one, and Miss Albina De Mar, the latter giving a specimen of dialect and character personation that is remarkably clever. Indeed, the lady, as the French woman, "Celeste," manifested more of ability, and made a deeper impression as to the true art work of difficult personation, than any other member of the company, proving herself to be a very skillful actress and an adept in her art. A new man, Charles Rosene, was good, as an Irish porter, and doubled successfully as a Jewish pawnbroker, a feat Mr. Long could not accomplish with success, as the broken-down actor. Miss Rouse, Mr. Armstrong and Mr. Dalton completed the cast of the "support." Curtis, the head of the company, assumes the character of a Polish Jew from Posen, who, from a Bowery huckster, rises by honest dealing, wit and native shrewdness to a position of trust in a manufacturing jewelry establishment, and becomes its commercial traveler. This character he takes well. It is testified that his picture of the street peddler of New York is not exaggeration. As "Sam'l of Posen" Curtis has a dialect part full of talk, but with very little action. His sentences bristle with sharp sayings, a good many of them being of the order of popular slang. He presents the character with less exaggeration than is common, and succeeds in keeping his audience in a merry humor the entire evening. His part is a low comedy one, and probably shows him at his best. It certainly in his hands, however frivolous, wins for him the smiles and applause of his auditors, and as these bring the ducats in it makes little difference to him whether his art is of a very ordinary order or not. To-night "Sam'l of Posen" again.

ASSUMES COMMAND.

Brigadier-General Lewellyn Tozer, of the Fourth Brigade, N. G. C., has issued the following orders, assuming command of his brigade and appointing his staff:

HEADQUARTERS FOURTH BRIGADE, N. G. C.,
SACRAMENTO, May 25, 1882.

[General Orders No. 2.]

I. By virtue of the provisions of General Orders No. 11 c. s. from General Headquarters, State of California, Adjutant-General's office, dated at Sacramento, May 18, 1882, I hereby assume command of the Fourth Brigade, N. G. C., relieving Brigadier-General John F. Sheehan, resigned.

II. In assuming command the Brigadier-General is deeply impressed with the responsibility that will devolve upon him. The admirable manner in which his predecessor fulfilled the duties of the office—the result of which becomes apparent in the present condition of the different commands comprising the brigade, as compared with their condition when he assumed the duties of Brigade Commander—deserves an honorable recognition, not only by the forces of the Fourth Brigade, but by the National Guard of the State. To discharge the duties of the office equally with General Sheehan, the Brigade Commander recognizes the labor to be done, and the interest that must be manifested, to enable him to make anything like a creditable comparison. He will, however, do the very best to maintain the present creditable efficiency of the brigade, and, if possible, elevate the esprit de corps of the different commands. To more effectually accomplish his purpose in this regard, the Brigade Commander relies on the officers and men to give him the assistance and co-operation they so cheerfully rendered to his predecessor.

III. Headquarters are established at No. 1022 Second street, where all official documents will be forwarded.

IV. The following appointments on the staff of the Brigadier-General commanding are hereby announced: H. W. Carroll to be Brigade Inspector, with the rank of Major. August Heilbron to be Ordnance Officer, with the rank of Major. Wm. J. Davis to be Engineer Officer, with the rank of Major. W. C. Van Fleet to be Judge Advocate, with the rank of Major. Harry A. Weaver to be Quartermaster, with the rank of Major. C. H. Hubbard to be Commissary, with the rank of Major. G. G. Tyrrell to be Surgeon, with the rank of Major. D. M. Burns to be Paymaster, with the rank of Major. W. I. Wallace to be Inspector of Rifle Practice, with the rank of Major. John A. Sheehan to be Aid-de-Camp, with the rank of Captain. They will be obeyed and respected accordingly.

V. Captain P. J. Harney, commanding Company B, First Artillery Regiment, is hereby detailed as acting Assistant Adjutant-General and Chief of Staff until further orders.

LEWELLYN TOZER,
Brigadier-General Commanding Fourth Brigade, N. G. C.

CAMP FIRE.—Sacramento Camp, Boys in Blue, held its first camp fire for this year, at Howe's Hall, last night. About forty ex-soldiers and sailors of the army and navy of the Union were present. W. A. Houghton, Commander, presided. Hard-tack and pork and beans were served out, with coffee strong enough to float an iron wedge, the whole supplemented by clay pipes and contraband tobacco. The Boys in Blue were out for a jolly night, and they had it, with toast, speech, song, jest and repartee until after 11 o'clock. Of the regular toasts there was one of welcome with a speech of hearty greeting to Commander Houghton; "The Army and Navy" brought out G. W. Ficks in apt reply, while "The Republican Party" was responded to by Judge S. Solon Holl. "The Press" acknowledged the honor done it in a fitting response by S. E. Carrington. To the toast "The Grand Army of the Republic," H. Bennett responded fraternally. For "The Colored Troops," B. T. Johnson made the response. In behalf of "The Ladies," T. H. Berkey made an appropriate response. For "The Mexican Veterans," Mr. Schumacher replied. For "The Old Comrades," J. L. Skinner made a pertinent speech. To the toast "The Governor and the State Government," Judge Safford replied in a happy speech. In behalf of "The Pioneers of California," John Miller responded. After the regular toasts there were volunteer sentiments and several speeches. The camp fire was extinguished after the company had united, under the leadership of Fred Dustman, in singing "We'll Rally Round the Flag, Boys."

COAST AND STATE.

The telephone wire is now completed from Bidwell's Bridge to Prattville, Plumas county.

A number of new and valuable strikes have been made in the neighborhood of Prescott, and the Democrat is encouraged to believe that a big mining boom for that section is one of the possibilities of the near future. A rapid development of the mines seems to be expected all over the Territory, and a corresponding advent of capital and enterprise is looked for. Indeed, the mining prospects of Arizona were never on a safer basis, or one that promised better results in spite of all the drawbacks we have had to encounter.—[Arizona Star.

A Pajaro man, in Santa Cruz county, went home the other day and found his cow puffed up like an angry hop-toad. Several remedies had been tried on the cow before the arrival of the owner, but to no good purpose. Her speedy death was prophesied, and would no doubt have taken place had not her owner cast his eye upon a piece of three-quarter-inch rubber hose. He grasped that hose, smoothed and greased the end of it, pushed it down the cow's throat as far as her first stomach, and that bloated cow immediately collapsed to her natural size. The bloat gas escaped through the hose and the cow escaped death.

The Winnemucca Silver State says that Naches, the Piute chief, is in town. He says the Indians have received news of troubles among the Bannacks and Shoshones. He says two parties of Bannacks were out hunting and had a fight in the night, mistaking each other for enemies. Two men were killed, and their scalps were brought to Duck valley, where the Indians held a war-dance. Some white men who saw the performance, and not understanding its meaning, reported that the reservation Indians were going on the war-path. General Kelton wants Natches to go to Duck valley and ascertain the cause of the rumored troubles, but as no provision was made for paying his expenses he cannot well go.

Nevada Herald: There was found in the China diggings at Moore's Flat, on Sunday, a quartz bowlder weighing eighty-five pounds, which, our informant says, is quite a curiosity. The rock is egg-shaped, and extending nearly around the center of it is a band of gold leaf. The band is not regular in size, in some places being nearly an inch wide and in others reduced almost to a thread. The bowlder looks as though it had been rolled over a large streak of gold and some of the precious metal had adhered to it. Whether the gold extends through the rock is not known, as it has not yet been broken open. Several who have viewed the specimen estimate that there are ten pounds of gold in it, but this is mere guess-work.

Saline valley is one of the most remarkable places among the most remarkable on the coast. If the lofty intervening Inyo range were out of the way it would not exceed fifteen miles distance from this, Owens valley. Yet it undoubtedly lies at one or two thousand feet lower altitude. It is simply an immense basin, say twelve by twenty-five miles in size, in the earth, surrounded on all sides with great mountains. At its lowest point of depression, immediately at the foot of the Inyo range, is found some 1,200 acres of pure salt—millions of tons of it, glistening like crusted snow. Bordering on this on all sides, except the west, comes miles square of sandy, dusty lands, caustic with alkali, borax, or some similar deposits, and presumed to be valuable on account of the same. On the opposite or western side is found a strip of rich, alluvial lands, one by three miles, perhaps, in extent, affording fair grazing throughout, a good portion of it being nutritious swamp grasses.—[Inyo Independent.

[SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE RECORD-UNION.]

CALIFORNIA.

Chinese Women Released.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 25th.—In the United States Circuit Court to-day Judge Sawyer discharged from custody the seven Chinese women who came from Hongkong on the steamer Glamis Castle. The women were arrested for a violation of the law which prohibits the importation of females for immoral purposes. Judge Sawyer discharged them on the ground that there was no evidence produced to show that the women are prostitutes or imported for the purposes of prostitution.

More Small-Pox on the Quarantined Steamer.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 25th.—Two more cases of small-pox were reported to-day on the steamer Altonower, both white—a ship carpenter and a seaman. Both were taken to the hospital. No cases have been reported yet on the Strathairly.

Death of the Belgian Consul.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 25th.—Emile Gristian Grisar, a prominent merchant of this city, died at his residence on Powell street at 11 o'clock last night, of heart disease. He had been ill for nearly four years, but none of his many friends realized that his end was so near. The deceased was a native of Antwerp, Belgium, and was aged 61 years. When a young man he sailed for America, and engaged for a time in business in Valparaiso, Chile. About 1855 he came to this coast, and entered the wool trade. He was a member, in early times, of the firm of De Boom, Vigneaux & Grisar. He was Consul for Belgium, resident in San Francisco. He leaves a wife, but no children. The flags of the different foreign Consulates, as well as that on the Merchants' Exchange, were flying at half-mast to-day in respect to his memory.

Truckee Trout Shipment.

TRUCKEE, May 25th.—Fifteen hundred pounds of trout were yesterday shipped from Lake Tahoe, mostly for the Sacramento and San Francisco markets; at the same time eighteen pounds of fish eggs were sent below for planting.

How a Party of Strangers Swindled the Truckee People.

TRUCKEE, May 25th.—For some time a party of strangers have attracted the attention of the officers of this place, but nothing positively criminal could be found against them. From the fact that they bought or borrowed instruments such as pincers, bits, wrenches, files, etc., it was supposed that they were engaged in boring and filling gold coin, or counterfeiting. It now transpires that they have left town for parts unknown, and left in circulation here, as is believed, quite a sum of tampered $20 gold pieces. The Chinamen also complain that they have on hand a lot of bogus jewelry and a bogus gold brick, which they bought of these parties and paid $800 for.

Death.

AUBURN, May 25th.—Samuel Putnam, proprietor of the Putnam House, died at 7:30 this morning, after an illness of a few days' duration.

Methodist Ministerial Meeting.

NEVADA CITY, May 25th.—The Methodist Episcopal Ministerial Association of Sacramento district met in this city yesterday. The following members are in attendance: H. C. Benson, Santa Clara; J. A. Vananda, Marysville; William Johnson, Colfax; S. Kinsey, Brownsville; E. A. Hazen, North San Juan; G. O. Ash, Grass Valley; E Jacka, Nevada City; G. G. Walter, Yuba City; H. L. Gregory, Roseville; T. B. Hopkins, Auburn; John Tambleyne, Nevada county. H. C. Benson, D. D., Presiding Elder, was elected Chairman, and William Johnson Secretary. The exercises are of an unusually interesting character. Last night a party of Grass Valley reformers known as Daniel's Band came up to join the preachers in holding a gospel temperance meeting.

Suit for Ejectment—Methodist Ministerial Association.

NEVADA, May 25th.—Suit was commenced in the Superior Court to-day by Frank Huss against A. C. Pope, to obtain possession of the Greenwood Cemetery at Grass Valley. Huss purchased the property from parties who had bought it for taxes, but Pope refuses to allow him to assume the ownership. A few days ago the latter armed his son with a shotgun and stationed him in the cemetery to keep Huff off the premises. The suit brought is for ejectment.

The Methodist Ministerial Association, which has been in session here the past two days, adjourned to-night, to meet at Sacramento next November.

Held to Answer.

GRASS VALLY, May 25th.—The preliminary examination of E. A. Roberts, who shot A. D. Mason, an attorney, on the 22d of last April, was held before Judge Davis to-day. The defendant was held to answer before the Superior Court, with bail fixed at $1,000.

Oil Warehouse Burned.

MARYSVILLE, May 25th.—A fire this morning destroyed the warehouse of the Continental Oil Company at the Central Pacific Railroad depot, with its contents. There was no insurance on the building, which was a mere frame shell of slight value. The contents were insured for $1,400.

Verdict of Not Guilty.

MARYSVILLE, May 25th.—The second trial of Charles Newkom, charged with the rape of a young girl, was concluded to-day at Yuba City. The jury found a verdict of not guilty. The defendant is a Sutter county farmer, of good social position.

Another Stage Robbery.

CHICO, May 25th.—The Chico Daily Enterprise has the following account of a stage robbery on the Humboldt road this morning: W. N. Messer's stage, driven by Ed Nelson, was stopped and robbed at Dead Man's Hill, about twelve miles from Chico, this morning about 8 o'clock, by two men and a boy, armed with rifles and pistols. They took Nelson's watch and chain, and got $17 from the passengers. The stage contained Mrs. W. N. Messer, two men and the driver. The robbers were all masked, and no clue to their identity can be had. Officers are making arrangements to start in pursuit.

Murder in the Second Degree.

WOODLAND, May 25th.—The second trial of James Smith, alias Bodie Smith, for the murder of M. F. Patterson, was concluded last evening, after a session of five days. The jury, after a deliberation of seven hours, returned a verdict of murder in the second degree—the same as the first verdict.

Closing College Exercises.

BENICIA, May 25th.—The closing exercises of St. Augustine College took place to-day in Eulexian Hall. A large number of friends of the cadets were present. The successful cadets are as follows: Competitive declamation, Cadet Soloman; saber drill, Cadet Martin; competitive drill for the Sarsfield gold medal, Cadet Friedagh. Rev. Mr. Wingfield delivered an address on "California Schools and Their Endowments." Cadet Wm. G. Mizner was the only graduate. Next week the Young Ladies' Seminary, Mrs. M. Atkins Lynch, principal, holds its closing exercises.

The Murder Case at San Jose.

SAN JOSE, May 25th.—In the Soto murder case to-day, the defense opened. A dozen residents of Mayfield testified to the quiet and peaceable disposition of the defendant. Mr. Ross was put on the stand to prove that the blow received by Soto on the temple several months before the killing tended to render him insane when drinking; but a doctor swore that he did not think it would so affect him, nor did he at the time of the injury consider it a serious one. The testimony will close to-day.

ARIZONA.

An Editor Shot At.

TUCSON, May 25th.—A recent number of the Daily Citizen published certain letters of C. D. Poston, and criticised him quite severely. This morning Poston met J. A. Whitmore, editor of the Citizen, at Porter's Hotel, and without saying a word drew a revolver and fired at Whitmore, missing him. Poston has been arrested, and will be placed under bonds. The Citizen will to-day denounce him as a cowardly assassin and bully.

Disastrous Conflagration at Tombstone.

TOMBSTONE, May 25th.—A fire broke out in the rear of the Tivoli Gardens, on Allen street, this afternoon about half-past 3 o'clock, and immediately communicated to the surrounding structures. The Grand Hotel and the magnificent rooms of the Tombstone Club, adjoining, were immediately enveloped in flames.

The fire spread rapidly, and soon the entire block between Toughnut and Allen streets, and Third and Fourth streets, was in flames. The fire department fought the flames like heroes, but it was evident from the first that the heart of the city was doomed.

The flames spread across Allen street and destroyed the entire block to Fremont street, and again crossed Fourth street, destroying the block bounded by Allen, Fremont, Third and Fourth streets. Here the flames were conquered, through the combined aid of the firemen, police and deputies under the command of Sheriff Behan.

The portion of the city destroyed comprised almost the entire business portion. The three principal hotels—the Grand, Cosmopolitan and Brown's—were reduced to ashes. The Nugget newspaper office was completely destroyed, not a type or pound of stock being rescued from the flames. The fire spread destruction and desolation all around. Most of the people have pluckily expressed a determination to commence to rebuild immediately. The entire city would have succumbed to the flames were it not for the herculean efforts of Sheriff Behan and his deputies, Chief of Police Nagle and our gallant little fire department.

The Western Union Telegraph office was among the first to hug the flames, but the manager, C. E. Donnelly, at the risk of his life, saved the records and instruments, and had established another office in a distant quarter within an hour.

It is impossible at present to estimate the loss. Perhaps half a million will cover it, but it certainly will not be less.

The Epitaph office suffered a loss of something less than $1,000 through breaking of furniture and material. This newspaper offered the use of all its material, not actually in use, to the Nugget, but the loss of the latter was too complete to attempt an immediate resurrection.

The insurance on the property destroyed will foot up about $250,000, but the loss will certainly double that. It will not affect the town, as most of the property destroyed was owned by solid business men, who will immediately rebuild.

Apparently a Reasonable Request.

FORT THOMAS, May 25th.—Esketleschew, chief of the Coyotero Apaches, has visited Col. Albert G. Brackett, of the Third Cavalry, commanding this post, and made in substance the following statement: He wishes the Government to allow his people to go back and live at their old home in the White mountains, where there is plenty of grass and water for stock-raising, and where they can farm. He complains that the sub-agency is unhealthy, and that the land is unproductive, and that no water can be had there for farming purposes. All they desire is to be permitted to go where they can make a living, and if they are allowed to return they will not ask the Government for assistance of any kind, as they can support themselves by farming, selling hay, grain and wood to the garrison. They yet have some stock not taken by the hostiles, which will enable them in a few years to have a sufficient number. He also stated that he wished the military to protect them from the Americans, Mexicans and hostile Indians. The chief said he would like to have the President send him a medal like the one Grant sent to his brother, Chief Pedro. He desired that Major Randall, or some other equally good officer, would command them. Referring to the cause of the Chiricahua outbreak, he said it was caused by Agent Tiffany not assisting them to make water ditches to irrigate their land. Two of the Chiefs, Juh and Nelclise, went on two different occasions to Tiffany, begging for his assistance in getting out the ditches, and that Tiffany would not reply or give them any satisfaction whatever. This is an important discovery, as it undoubtedly places one of the causes, if not the principal cause, of the outbreak. A council has lately been held by the two White mountain tribes, and the Sierra Ancha and Arivapo tribes, in which this chief was considered the leading spirit, and his coming to hold a council with Colonel Brackett was at the request of the Indian Council. He speaks in positive terms that they desire no assistance from the Government, but protection and the privilege to cultivate their own lands. This chief stated that he represented fifteen chiefs of different bands of Apaches, who had sent him with this message, and hence he spoke by authority.

NEVADA.

Weather on the Comstock.

VIRGINIA, May 25th.—It has been snowing and raining here almost constantly for two days and nights, but in town the snow melts as fast as it falls.

IDAHO.

Young Man Accidentally Killed.

LEWISTON, May 25th.—A son of Mr. Parson, living about two miles from this city, was accidentally shot in the breast this afternoon and killed by a fourteen-year-old boy. The deceased was 22 years old. They were "fooling." No one supposed the gun was loaded.

OREGON.

Cargo of Lime on Fire.

PORTLAND, May 25th.—A cargo of 3,000 barrels of lime on the steamer Yaquina took fire at half-past 6 o'clock this morning, and is still burning. The steamer had just arrived here from San Juan, and her deck load of 600 barrels had been discharged. As soon as the blue smoke was seen the hatches were battened down, and it is impossible to tell how bad the fire is. It is thought that the vessel will have to be scuttled. She is only six months old, cost $35,000, and is owned principally by Z. J. Hatch, of this city. There is no insurance on the vessel or cargo. On account of the great building boom there was a scarcity of lime here, and this loss will keep many mechanics out of employment until another cargo is received.

[SECOND DISPATCH.]

PORTLAND, May 25th.—At 3 P. M. the flames burst out in the engine-room and enveloped the after cabin. The lines were cut loose, and the vessel drifted down, touching the Portland boat-house, but men on a pontoon shoved her off with planks. Captain Denny, the mate and crew stayed aboard, and threw a line to the river steamer Lurline, which towed the Yaquina to East Portland, where she was scuttled in eight feet of water. The Jefferson-street ferryboat steamed alongside and poured in two good streams. It looks now (7 P. M.) as though the hull may be saved.

LATER.—The steamer has been burned to the water's edge, and will be nearly a total loss.

The Bradley Murder Trial—Chinaman's Funeral.

PORTLAND, May 25th.—In the Bradley trial to-day Dollie Adams was cross-examined, and it is believed made her story stronger than ever. Mollie Flippan corroborated the story of poisoning in every particular. The belief is general that the prosecution is making a strong case.

Lam Tah Wy, a prominent Chinaman and a Patriarch of Masons, was buried to-day with great pomp. The cortege was imposing, and was witnessed by thousands.

Two Men Drowned.

PORTLAND, May 25th.—Mail advices from Granite Point, Snake river, state that four stave-cutters in the employ of D. D. McBean, contractor for the bridge at Ainsworth, undertook to go down the river in a skiff. On reaching the Palouse rapids the boat capsized, and P. J. Murphy and Michael Brannan were drowned. The other occupants—John Lynch and H. A. McLean—were rescued by men who put out in a boat from Lyon's ferry, just below the scene of the accident.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

Summary Punishment Meted Out to a Petty Offender.

WALLA WALLA (W. T.), May 25th.—A year since a family named Neal lived at Rockford, Spokan county. They were known as a tough set—a sort of Younger family on a small scale. One of them was indicted for creating a disturbance at the Methodist church and arraigned at the District Court. He succeeded in getting a continuance, and in the meantime the family pulled up stakes and journeyed to Montana, and their going was a signal for rejoicing among the law-abiding settlers in that section. Aldy, one of the boys, and a sister remained, and in November last this man was arrested for stealing a horse; but he left the country and joined the family in Montana. Last Sunday he again appeared at Rockford, coming, as he said, for his sister. Once housed, a party of citizens, knowing that he was wanted, surrounded the house and captured him. A detail of citizens was made to convey him to Cheney, and as threats of lynching had been made, the detail started at daylight on Monday; but when about a mile and a half from Rockford, and while passing a thick growth of timber, about twenty men heavily armed and the lower part of their faces masked, stepped into the roadway before and behind the guard, and under cocked revolvers forced them to deliver up the prisoner. Two men then unstrapped Neal from the saddle he was bound on and led him into the timber. Realizing his position he begged piteously for his life, promising that he would confess all the wrong himself and family had ever done in the neighborhood, and would leave the place forever. The captors paid no heed, but told him his time had come and he had better make peace with his Creator. They gave him a minute for preparation, and then fastened a stout rope about his neck, and throwing it over a limb, several men caught it, and Andy Neal was swinging between heaven and earth. After the crowd had become satisfied that he was dead, all separated and rode off. Those who first arrested Neal say that they cannot identify any of the lynchers. Walla Walla condemns the affair, and says that Neal was a bad man in a petty way only, and that a severe cowhiding would have cured him of his deviltry and frightened him out of the country.

Residence Burned—Decoration Day—Commencement Exercises.

SEATTLE, May 25th.—The house of D. N. Taylor, a farmer living twenty miles back of this city, was destroyed by fire last Tuesday, with its contents. Loss, $15,000; no insurance.

Decoration Day will be observed in grand style in this city.

The exercises of commencement day at the Territorial University were most interesting. There were seven graduates. The address of Judge Deady was a fine effort, and was listened to with profound attention.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

The Queen's Birthday.

VICTORIA, May 25th.—The sixty-fourth anniversary of her Majesty's birthday yesterday was observed as a general holiday. All places of business were closed, and buildings and shipping were gaily decked with flags. H. M. S. Rocket and the United States revenue cutter Oliver Wolcott, anchored in the harbor, fired a royal salute. The great feature was a regatta, which was in every respect a success, the day being beautiful and the number of visitors large. About 300 people from Puget Sound took part in the demonstration.

We think this is about the proper time to get up a correspondence with country relatives; for time flies, and soon will vacation be here, and then it will be nice to take a month in the hayfields, and see the bulldog chase the cow, and the hornet get in its work on the small boy's neck, and the goat stand on his hind legs and eat the linen off the airy line.—[New York Star.

SCRAPS.

The young lady who banged her hair at a looking-glass did not break the glass.

If a man really wants to know of how little importance he is, let him go with his wife to the dressmaker's.

"Know thyself," may be an excellent sort of proverb, but some people wouldn't know very much if they obeyed it implicitly.

A genealogist is like a grammarian on one thing—he is always looking up the antecedents of his relatives.—[Boston Globe.

A young man who thought he had won the heart and now asked the hand in marriage of a certain young widow, was asked by her: "What is the difference between myself and Mr. Baxley's Durham cow?" He naturally replied, "Well, I don't know." "Then," said the widow, "you had better marry the cow."—[Brockton Gazette.

An Austin editor was writing at home, when his numerous children disturbed him, whereupon he howled to his wife: "I'm busy writing an editorial, denouncing the inflicting of corporal punishment on children in the public schools of Texas, and if those brats interrupt me once more I'll get up and wear my cane out on them."—[Texas Siftings.

"I want to tell you fair and square," said the customer from the interior, "that the very next time you send me another barrel of molasses which is short a whole pint, I'm going to transfer my custom to a firm which gives dead weight and full measure. Have you got any coffee which is put up in sacks that will make a bed-quilt good enough for children?"—[Detroit Free Press.

A gentleman who had spent half the winter at Washington endeavoring to get a private bill through Congress, returned to the bosom of his family a sadder and a wiser man. Shortly after his arrival he was met by a friend, who greeted him warmly with: "Glad to see you back again. How about your bill?" "Bill—bill?" said the disappointed solicitor, confusedly, with a dim recollection of an encounter with the hotel keeper, "I left it unpaid."—[Brooklyn Eagle.

A country doctor was sent for to see a laborer who had received a concussion of the brain. He told his wife to apply leeches, which he promised to send. The next morning he found the man worse and delirous, and asked the wife whether she had used the leeches. She answered that she had given him one; whereat she was told by the indignant doctor that she had risked her husband's life. The poor woman pleaded that she had done her best. "I cut un up small, I vinegared and I peppered un; but 'a said 'a 'd liefer die nor take another."—[Pall Mall Gazette.

Sam P. B. Hearne: "Is there an opening in your office for a young man who has not had much experience in literary work, but who believes he could assist you in editing your famous paper?" There is no opening in the office, but there is an opening in the back yard that used to be a well. It is our custom to take both young and old men, who have not had much experience in literary work, but who believe they could assist us in editing Siftings, and throw them into this opening, after which we gently drop an old job press them. Drop in on us when you have leisure.—[Texas Siftings.

DONT'S FOR HUSBANDS.

Don't think, when you have won a wife, that you have also won a slave.

Don't think that your wife has less feeling than your sweetheart. Her relationship to you is simply changed, not her nature.

Don't think that you can dispense with all the civilities of life toward her you married. She appreciates those courtesies quite as much as other women do.

Don't be gruff and rude at home. Had you been that sort of a fellow before marriage, the probabilities are you would be sewing on your own buttons yet.

Don't make your wife feel that she is an incumbrance on you by giving grudgingly. What she needs give cheerfully, as if it were a pleasure so to do. She will feel better and so will you.

Don't find fault with her extravagance in ribbons, etc., until you have shut down on cigars, tobacco, whisky, etc.

Don't leave your wife at home to nurse the children on the score of economy while you bolt down town at night to see the show or spend a dollar on billiards.

Don't eat your supper in a hurry and go off to spend the evenings, lounging around, away from your wife. Before marriage you couldn't spend evenings enough with her. And if you are a good and kind husband, she'll enjoy your company quite as well as she did before marriage.

Don't expect your wife to honor and love you, if you prove a man unworthy of love and honor.

Don't caress your wife in public, and snarl and growl at her in private. This proves you a hypocrite.

Don't wonder that your wife is not as cheerful as she used to be, when she labors from early morn till late at night, for the comfort of a husband who does not appreciate her. Always remember that the best telegraphing is flashing a ray of sunshine into a yearning heart.

Don't, if your wife has faults, be constantly reminding her of them, while you have never a word of commendation for her virtues. If she did that with you, you would be as mad as a hornet.

Don't expect your wife to have no failings. Not to have is not to be human; and, besides, you were marrying a lady when you married her, and she married a gentleman.

Don't ever forget that if you both live as you should, that you will always be respected as genteel persons.

Don't forget to be gentle with thy wife.

Be gentle, for you little know
How many trials rise;
Although to thee they may be small,
To her of giant size.

Be gentle; perfect there are none;
Thou'rt dearer far than life;
Then, husbandr, bear and still forbear;
Be gentle to thy wife.

TYPOGRAPHICAL TRIPPINGS.—Swift's "Battle of the Rooks," Macaulay's "Laps of Ancient Rome," Palmer and Drake's "Dessert of Exodus," have been priced in a bookseller's list, and a work on block-printing catalogued as containing "sixty-nine engravings either from wood or metal, twelve of which have been inscriptions, representing scenes of Christian mythology, figures of patriarchs, saints, devils and other dignitaries of the church." For the last we cannot hold the printer blamable, but he is assuredly answerable for the chronological impossibility involved in the announcement for sale of "an old History of England, by Hume [published in 1767], from the Invasion of Julius Cæsar to Revolution 1868." By another mishandling of figures an inquiring correspondent was informed that an Act for abolishing Gretna Green marriages was passed in 1856, and came in force on the 1st of January, 1837. Trifling with figures is a thing to be avoided. The Hamburg almanacs for 1880 announced the holding of the February horse fair on the 4th instead of the 24th of that month; and the influx of horses and horse dealers into the city upon the first-named day caused much perturbation to the authorities, who, ignorant of the blunder of the almanac-mongers, had made no arrangements for the reception of the visitors. They got over the difficulty to their own and everybody else's satisfaction, but ordained that thenceforth no almanac should be published until it had received official certification.—[Chambers' Journal.

A CRUEL JOKE.—Villemessant once played a cruel practical joke on one of his staff, a gentleman who was over head and heels in debt. On the unfortunate individual in question presenting himself at the headquarters of the Figaro soon after 12 one night as usual, he was horrified to find figuring at the top of the first column the following announcement: "The creditors of M. X— are hereby informed that he has decided upon paying his debts, and that they may, therefore, present themselves at the caisse of this journal to-morrow at 2. They will form a line along the Rue Rossini, Rue Chauchat, Rue Lafayette and Boulevard Haussman. A picket of sergeants-de-ville will keep order. The Marseillaise will not be allowed." The impecunious debtor, aghast at what he saw, asked for M. Villemessant, but was told he had gone to Nice leaving express orders that the paragraph was to go in, and it was not until the moment of going to press that he was informed that he had been made the victim of a salutary practical joke.

UNEXPECTED CRITICISM.—One of the most eloquent and popular clergymen of Austin, Texas, being about to ascend the steps leading to his church a few Sundays ago, was asked by a partially blind old lady, who did not recognize him, to help her up the steps. With his usual urbanity he complied with her request. Just as they reached the top steps she asked him who was going to preach. "Parson Smith," he replied, that being his own name. "O Lord!" exclaimed the old lady. "Help me down again. I'd rather listen to a man sawing wood. Please help me down again. I don't care to go in." At first the clergyman was inclined to refuse, but, on reflection, he gently assisted her down the steps again, remarking as they reached the bottom: "You are quite right, madam, about not going into the church. I wouldn't go in either if I was not paid for it."

SHE SPRAINED HER ANKLE.

"Do you want a new item?" asked a timid young man, as he nervously approached the city editor late last night. The city editor looked up, and, seeing before him a face whose expression of concealed intellectually bespoke ambition, perhaps, of a literary character, responded: "Do we want a new item?"

The timid young man, greatly encouraged, drew from his pocket a rumpled piece of paper, and, laying it proudly down on the editor's desk, smiled encouragingly and said: "It's about a accident. I saw it, and so wrote it up myself to save you the trouble. I thought that some time I might want to be a reporter, and so I want to show you that I can write some."

The patient long-suffering editor picked up the contribution and glanced hurriedly over it, remarking, "Thank you," and as the youthful contributor moved hesitatingly away, added hurriedly: "Hold on a minute. What's this? What's this?"

While trying to walk on the slippery and slimy sidewalk Mrs. R. W. Vansickley fell and sprained her ankle near the corner of Madison street and Fifth avenue. She was taken to her home in the Town of Lake.

"So you saw this painful occurrence, did you? Ah, you did. Well, then, perhaps you can tell me how many other streets besides Madison street and Fifth avenue intersect on this lady's ankles? Her ankles are seventeen miles long, ain't they? So she was trying to walk on the slippery and slimy sidewalk, was she? Why didn't she walk in the middle of the street? Why didn't she go galivanting along on the tops of the horse-cars or on the telegraph wires? And she was taken to her home in the town of Lake, was she? Why didn't some one call the patrol wagon or a carriage. What's the need of bringing the whole town of Lake into the heart of tho city to take a disabled woman home?" And he looked around for the youthful contributor. He had gone to see Charley Ross.

ALL AROUND THE COAST.

Truckee is beginning to assume its general spring liveliness.

The people of Vacaville are taking steps to erect a Catholic church at that place.

Decoration Day is to be celebrated in an appropriate manner at Virginia City, Eureka and other points in Nevada.

The Chico Enterprise now appears as a daily newspaper. It makes a neat, newsy and in every way creditable appearance.

Benicia will lose 200 voters at the next election, that many workmen having left there to live at Port Costa, where they work.

Drinks and cigars at Missoula, Montana, have risen in price to 25 cents each. This would seem to indicate a great scarcity of water in that section.

The mountain country of San Diego county seems to be infested more than usual this season with rattlesnakes, lions, wild-cats and coyotes.

Mrs. Louise Boddy, of Tule Lake, Lake county, Oregon, has been allowed $5,500 by the present Congress for losses sustained during the Modoc war.

A gentleman now in Los Angeles informs the reporter of the Express that the evening before he left Tombstone, which was a few days ago, a purse of $2,500 was raised to pay for Indian scalps at $10 apiece.

A redwood tree, 19 feet in diameter, was felled near Guerneville, and a correspondent says that when it fell more than 200 tons struck the solid earth, and the concussion rattled the dishes in houses a mile away.

It is said that the Canyon Diablo bridge, on the Atlantic and Pacific Railroad, north of Prescott, Arizona, is the highest bridge in the world, with one exception. From the bottom of the canyon to the center of the bridge is about 230 feet.

The Ogden Pilot says: Our city is beginning to recruit from the rough classes again, and insults and insolence are again being offered to ladies and gentlemen by prowling tramps. A little more chain-gang recruiting would be in order.

Nevada Transcript: A gentleman who ought to know informs us that there are about twenty new houses being built on the outskirts of the town. City lots are so scarce that all the new buildings must necessarily be put on lots some distance from the principal thoroughfares.

We think now, of the counties where wheat is the foremost interest, that Butte and Sutter are the only counties that will sell more than last year, and they may weaken, as large areas of winter-sown grain cover both. The State will be short. Colusa will be an average county.—[Colusa Sun.

The Reno Gazette says: "Washoe City is excited over the discovery of good ore at a point about half-way between Washoe City and the foot of Mount Davidson. The same ground was located and partially prospected twenty years ago. No prospecting has been carried on in that vicinity for years until this spring."

The Oroville Register of the 19th inst. says: "A. J. Binney, Superintendent of the California Northern Railroad, arrived here Wednesday. He is on his way to the mountains to examine the country up the North Fork of Feather river, from Oroville to the Big Meadows, Greenville, Crescent Mills, Quincy and other points in Plumas county, with a view to determining the practicability of connecting those points by rail with the California Northern Railroad at Oroville. Mr. Binney spent some time last year in examining this same country with the same object in view. His present trip, he informs us, is made to finish the examination commenced last year. We are not at liberty, at the present time, to publish the conversation had with Mr. Binney upon this railroad subject, but we are at liberty to say that there is a strong probability of Oroville and the points named being in the near future connected by a narrow-gauge railroad. Such a connection cannot fail to be of great advantage to Oroville."

BRIEF SAN FRANCISCO ITEMS.

Another "Branch of the League of Deliverance" has been organized; this time at 710 Montgomery street.

The investigation into the Industrial School matters continues. The testimony on Wednesday was to the effect that the school is well managed, but there is want of system in the receipt and distribution of provisions.

At a late hour Tuesday night Mrs. Johanna Doyle, with her five little children, the oldest being ten and the youngest three years of age, were furnished lodgings at the Central Station. The woman is penniless and has no home, and her husband is a confirmed sot.

Mr. Jacobs, who resides at 111 Eleventh street, has in his possession a remarkable hen's egg, or, more correctly speaking, two eggs, with soft shells, joined together, a la Siamese twins, by a ligament half an inch in length. It was laid by an ordinary farm-yard hen.

It is reported that the old shoe factory building on Fell street has been leased for the purpose of turning it into a hat manufactory. The proprietors, it is understood, propose giving employment to about sixty white workmen at first, and to a limited number of boys and girls to learn the trade.

The trial of Captain Charles N. Sparks, of the Gatherer, was resumed Wednesday in the United States District Court. Judge Hoffman ruled that counsel must confine their questions to the acts enumerated in the eight counts selected by the prosecution out of the thirty-six contained in the ten indictments against the defendant upon which to try him.

S. M. Brown is under arrest for embezzling the watch and chain of a married woman named Mills. He induced Mills and wife, by false pretenses as to his wealth, to come to California to operate his farm, and borrowed money and finally the watch and chain of them. He turns out to have neither money, farm nor credit, and was found in the Home for the Inebriate.

United States Commissioner O'Bierne, Wednesday, held an examination in the case of Ah Foong, charged with trying to bribe Custom House Inspector E. T. McLean on board the British ship Glamis Castle on the 15th inst. It appeared that the accused tried to induce the Inspector to pass some wines without payment of the legal duties, and he was held to answer before the Grand Jury.

Wednesday morning two burglars entered the room of Edward H. Beverly, 232 Minna street. Beverly lay quiet and allowed the pair to relieve his clothing of $85 in five-dollar gold pieces and a watch and chain. Following them out as quickly as possible, Beverly reported his loss to officers Smith and Cronin, who started for the Barbary Coast in pursuit of the thieves. Meeting officer McNulty on Kearny street they informed him of the matter, and from Beverly's description the cracksmen were speedily identified as Thomas Friel and Joseph Heinze, who were captured in a low dive a block or two from the city prison. Both were searched, the watch and money being found on them, and then locked up for burglary.

Treat all Chronic and Special Diseases

YOUNG MEN

WHO MAY BE SUFFERING FROM THE effects of youthful follies or indiscretion. will do well to avail themselves of this, the greatest boon ever laid at the altar of suffering humanity. DR. SPINNEY will guarantee to forfeit $500 for every case of Seminal Weakness or Private Disease of any kind or character which he undertakes and fails to cure

MIDDLE-AGED MEN.

There are many at the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with too frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting or burning sensation, and a weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. On examining the urinary deposits a ropy sediment will often be found, and sometimes small particles of albumen will appear, or the color will be of a thin milkish hue, again changing to a dark and torpid appearance. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.

Office hours—10 to 4 and 6 to 8. Sunday from 10 to 11 A. M. Consultation free. Thorough examination and advice, $5. Call or address

DR. SPINNEY & CO.,
No. 11 Kearny street, San Francisco.

P. S.—For private diseases of short standing, a full course of medicines, sufficient for a cure, with all instructions will be sent to any address for $10.
